UPLAND OVERVIEW

Upland is a city in San Bernardino County, California, United States on the border with neighboring Los Angeles County. The municipality is located at an elevation of 1,242 feet. As of the 2020 census, the city had a population of 79,040, up from 73,732 at the 2010 census and 68,393 at the 2000 census. Upland is located at the foot of the highest part of the San Gabriel Mountains. The suburb is part of the Inland Empire, a metropolitan area situated directly east of the Los Angeles metropolitan area.

Upland was incorporated on May 15, 1906, after previously being named North Ontario. The population was growing, and families were starting to settle not only in Ontario, but in North Ontario as well. Citrus was a growing industry in both areas, but the residents of North Ontario wanted to find a way to differentiate between the fruit of the two areas. One resident, Charles D. Adams, owner of the Ontario Fruit Exchange, proposed creating a new citrus association called the Upland Citrus Association. He chose the name Upland knowing that “fruit produced at higher altitudes was usually of better quality”. Hence, fruit grown “up land” would pass on that connotation. When business efforts started to fail in the late 1880’s and the Magnolia Villa was forced to close, residents hung onto the Upland name. North Ontario was successfully renamed Upland in 1902.

SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY

Known as the Inland Empire, the Riverside-San Bernardino metro is a 28,000-square-mile region in Southern California, composed of San Bernardino and Riverside counties. The metro contains a population of 4.6 million. The largest city is Riverside, with more than 330,000 residents, followed by Fontana and San Bernardino, with roughly 222,000 people each. Valleys in the southwestern portion of the region that are adjacent to Los Angeles, Orange County and San Diego County are the most populous in the metro. These areas about the San Bernardino and San Jacinto mountains, behind which lies the high-desert area of Victorville/Barstow to the north, and the low-desert Coachella Valley — home of Palm Springs — to the east.

METRO HIGHLIGHTS

STRATEGIC LOCATION

Interstate access and proximity to LAX and Ontario International airports, as well as ports in Long Beach and Los Angeles, contribute to the metro's vast transportation network.

DOMINANT INDUSTRIAL MARKET

The metro is one of the nation's leading industrial markets in terms of annual property sales, construction activity and net absorption.

STRONG DEMOGRAPHIC TRENDS

Job growth, colleges and regionally affordable housing options draw thousands of new residents to the Inland Empire each year.

ECONOMY

- Intermodal infrastructure supports the warehousing and distribution industry. Ontario International and the Southern California Logistics Airport in Victorville represent local cargo airports, with Union Pacific and BNSF operating rail facilities.
- The metro's standing as a logistics hub requires many Fortune 500 companies to have massive distribution centers in the area, such as Amazon and Deckers.
- Relatively affordable housing, compared with nearby counties, supports population growth. These gains heighten the need for housing, goods and services.
